FACULTY MEETINGS

Our faculty meeting plans are complete with all the tools you need to use them right away to create meaningful and thought-provoking meetings that support your staff.

Closing Out The School Year

Each school year presents unique successes and challenges, and ending it smoothly creates a sense of accomplishment and positive impression for the students, staff, and families in the learning community. This faculty meeting will provide staff with inspiration and time to plan activities that will lead students through reflecting on their academic and social emotional growth and build student hope for the future.

Opening The Door To A New Year

Bringing staff together for the opening day of school is critical to setting the tone for the entire school year. This faculty meeting will help inspire your staff to work together this year to learn, grow, and experience positive student outcomes. Through focusing on building a strong adult community that centers on trust, relationships, growth mindset, and collaboration, we model for staff members how to create an optimal learning environment for the students they work with.

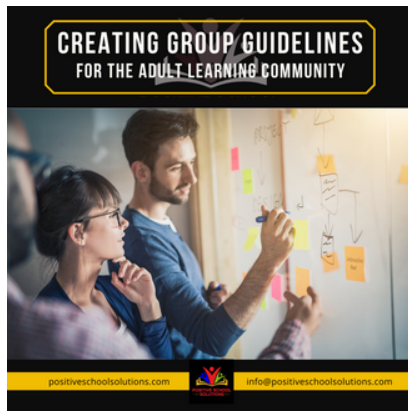

Building a Strong Foundation

For a healthy school culture to exist, there must be a shared understanding of the rules and procedures that will be introduced, taught, discussed, and practiced for all students within the building. This faculty meeting will support the adult community in identifying the procedures students need to know in individual and common spaces throughout the learning environment.

Creating a Unified Vision

To create an optimal learning environment for all students, we must define what we as a school community believes that looks, sounds, and feels like for both the adults and students. When we establish a shared understanding of what an optimal learning environment entails, we can use that mutual agreement as the starting point for conversations, and a lens through which we can make decisions to guide our work together.

POSITIVE SCHOOL SOLUTIONS

Creating Group Guidelines

As a leader, one of the most important things we can do to set our meetings up for success is to create group norms. Group norms are a set of agreements outlining the expectations of how members will work with each other and how the group will work overall. This meeting plan will help you lead your staff through a collaborative process to establish group norms for the adult learning community.

Creating Clear Communication Channels

Work environments with strong and open communication provide individuals a sense of trust, respect, and encouragement to succeed. This faculty meeting will support you in guiding staff through an exploration of their own communication preferences and identifying ways to establish clear channels of communication with various stakeholders in the learning community.

Celebrating Success

Celebrating personal and collegial professional successes creates a supportive work environment. This faculty meeting plan will help you nurture an adult learning community that recognizes the effort and accomplishments of individuals and teams, and highlights how personal growth positively impacts others.

Expressing and Cultivating Gratiitude

Gratitude is a powerful emotion and leads to a multitude of positive outcomes. This faculty meeting will support you in expressing gratitude for staff and creating the conditions for a culture of gratitude towards others.

Faculty meetings are opportunities to deliver short professional development that is impactful in cultivating a sense of community and raising the quality of instruction in the building.

FACULTY MEETINGS

High quality professional development is an important element in elevating teacher effectiveness and positive student outcomes.

Goal Setting

Adult communities that continue to learn and set goals together are better equipped to help students do the same. When focusing on one area of improvement and devoting time and attention to practice, goal setting is one way we can help ourselves to grow and find success. This faculty meeting plan will support you in leading staff members to set SMART goals that they'll work on over a period of time.

Whole School Spaces Check-In

Once routines and expectations have been taught and practiced with students, it is essential to periodically review them. Taking time to review the expectations for whole school spaces allows staff to ensure the routines are developmentally appropriate for students and are practiced on a regular basis. This faculty meeting supports the adult community in reviewing the procedures students follow in common spaces throughout the learning environment.

Building Blocks of SELf-Care

Optimal learning environments are best created by teachers that have strong social emotional learning skills and regularly practice self-care. This faculty meeting will support staff in creating good habits to build a strong foundation for SELf-care throughout the year so they are able to feel like their best self at work every day.

Connecting Values to SELf-Care

Self-care is taking action to preserve or improve our personal health, so self-care will, and should, look different for each individual - especially if we live our lives according to our values. This faculty meeting plan will support you in leading staff through exercises to identify activities that align with their values to replenish their personal and professional self.
